Commercial crime is estimated to cost the South African economy billions of rands annually. Crime statistics show that a heavy burden is placed on business as a result of this type of crime. Businesses are forced to protect themselves against this growing risk of direct financial loss as a result of theft and fraud, by investing in commercial crime insurance.

This webinar draws on practical cases Nolan has dealt with in his many years in the forensic and insurance world and while dealing with large and complex frauds - plus the insurance claims that follow.
