

MUSLIM MARRIAGE CONTRACTS

5 hours estimated learning time

Self-paced online course

THE COURSE AT A GLANCE

In South Africa, religious marriages are in the main not legally recognised. Although the Constitutional Court recently found that the non-recognition of Muslim marriages is unconstitutional, Muslim marriages still need to be regulated by legislation.

Pending legislative regulation of Muslim marriages, it is important for parties to enter into legally enforceable Muslim marriage contracts to regulate their religious marriages.

It is hoped that after completing this course, participants will have acquired sufficient knowledge of Muslim family law and marriage laws in South Africa to enable them to draft a Muslim marriage contract that will afford adequate legal protection for the parties.

Sign up and work at your own pace!

ESTIMATED LEARNING TIME: Five hours

FEE: R2,600 per delegate

PRESENTER: Professor Waheeda Amien is an expert in Religious Family Laws and Human Rights. Her research places special focus on Muslim Family Law. She teaches undergraduate and postgraduate students in UCT's Faculty of Law and supervises several PhD theses. Her research interests include Religious Family Laws, Freedom of Religion, Gender Equality, and Legal Pluralism.

COURSE FORMAT: Self-paced online course

CERTIFICATE: A certificate of participation from UCT

TO REGISTER OR FOR MORE INFORMATION:

Email: Don Coue on don.coue@uct.ac.za

Or visit: www.lawatwork.uct.ac.za