Since the first King report in 1994, shareholder activism has been recognised as an integral part of the overall corporate governance ecosystem and increasingly so with the current focus on Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG).

This course will give insights to ESG and sustainability, particularly the role of responsible investing and shareholder activism, the legal rights plus best practice corporate governance expectations that flow from these - for the institutional investor community and investee companies alike.

The course will benefit investors, business owners, CEOs, corporate lawyers, investment professionals, retire fund trustees, ESG / stakeholder managers, company secretaries, directors, board committee members and others charged with governance duties in an organisation.

PRESENTED BY: Richard Foster - CD (SA), FCG (CGP), HFInstD, Hdip Co Law (Wits), Hdip Tax Law (RAU), PGdip Corp Gov (RAU). Corporate governance advisor, and professional Independent Non-Executive Director
