This is a practical, entry-level course designed to demystify the legal and commercial frameworks that underpin derivatives and securities financing transactions. It focuses on the negotiation and structure of key global markets agreements, namely the 2002 ISDA® Master Agreement (ISDA), 2011 Global Master Repurchase Agreement (GMRA) and 2010 Global Master Securities Lending Agreement (GMSLA).

Participants will be introduced to:

- The purpose and architecture of global master agreements
- Key legal concepts such as netting, close-out, and representations
- Typical negotiation points and commercial considerations
- Common pitfalls and how to avoid them
- The role of these agreements in treasury, risk, and trading functions
- Current market developments, including post-LIBOR reforms and margin regulations

The course blends legal insight with practical deal experience, empowering attendees to engage meaningfully with documentation in cross-border transactions.
